writing for green

Anatomy of the Grant Process:

When is it necessary to work with others? When is independent work best?

Instructions: Think through when, at each point in the process below, you would need to work with other people and when you might need to work alone. Note some of those times in bullet points under each section. The first few sections provide some examples to help you get started.

Discovery process

- Would work with other people to conduct interviews for information-gathering purposes

Creating the outline

- Mainly done alone - may not even share the link yet

Completing the task list

- Might complete the initial draft independently

Assigning tasks

-

Drafting the initial narrative content

-

Gathering required documents (e.g., letters of support, organizational audits, etc.)

-

Writing initial narrative content

-

Editing the narrative content

-

Developing the budget, etc.

-

© 2023 Writing for Green, LLC